Buildwise undertook part of an extensive programme of works at the Royal Opera House.

Executive offices located across two floors of the Royal Opera House required reconfiguring to make better use of the space and to accommodate a growing workforce.

The reconfigured spaces were then refurbished with high quality finishes, and with the addition of bespoke glazed section dividers.

Careful management and a well thought out and executed programme of works was put in place, enabling the offices to remain in use throughout. The project was divided into six fast track phases. Acoustic divisions were installed within larger open plan offices and out-of-hours working practices were used to maintain an operational working environment for employees.

Our teams of professionals are experienced at overcoming the challenges of working in occupied spaces.

The management team at the Royal Opera House were very happy with the completed works, which were completed on time and on budget.
